Dietary protein source and hyperphosphatemia in hemodialysis. Four patients on maintenance hemodialysis with stable serum phosphorus levels were studied to determine whether long-term dietary protein modification would affect serum phosphorus concentration. The usual protein diet was compared with a diet whose protein source was soy protein for 4 to 6 months, then cornstarch for an additional 4 months. Serum phosphorus levels were stable during the whole study period. There was no relationship between phosphorus level and predialysis protein intake or urea nitrogen removal. There was a relationship between phosphorus level and dialysate protein loss, which was significantly less when soy protein was used as the dietary protein source. The study suggests that it may be possible to stabilize serum phosphorus levels with diets that maximize protein removal without increasing nutritional requirements.Q: How to assign random numbers to 4 matrices? I am using OpenCV. I have 4 3x3 matrices, which are named matrix_0, matrix_1, matrix_2, matrix_3. I want to assign 4 random numbers to these 4 matrices. How can I do this? A: In a comment, you suggest matrix_0 = matrix_0 + randi([0 1 2], size(matrix_0, 2)).` matrix_1 = matrix_1 + randi([0 1 2], size(matrix_1, 2)).` matrix_2 = matrix_2 + randi([0 1 2], size(matrix_2, 2)).` matrix_3 = matrix_3 + randi([0 1 2], size(matrix_3, 2)).` However, as the commenters pointed out, you probably also want to add in the meanings, both for conciseness and stability, as using each element three times will usually not give you random numbers. In your comment you write matrix_0 = matrix_0 + mean([0 1 2], size(matrix_0, 2)); This doesn't even
