They told me that they would send me a car but that wasn t enough for me, â€śI needed to see the car with my own eyes,â€ť explained Zamudio. That was last year, he said. â€śTwo weeks ago, I got a call from my insurance company saying that they were able to get me a car and I could pick it up tomorrow,â€ť Zamudio said. This is the second year in a row Zamudio has had to get a new vehicle. But it was his friend â€świhose car it was, who took me to the dealer and signed for it,â€ť he said. He is grateful for the generosity, but he still wants to give back. â€śI want to help them,â€ť he said. On Thursday and Friday, he bought the two-seater Chevrolet Colorado for two donors, purchasing one car for all of them at a total cost of $250. On Saturday, he picked up a third donor s vehicle. Since 2006, Zamudio has coordinated the â€śMaranatha Carâ€ť program, which matches financially-challenged donors with needy local non-profits. In 2011, Zamudioâ€™s charity broke the record for the most â€śdonors-givenâ€ť with more than $132,000 in donated cars and services. Zamudio has received more than $80,000 from 343 donors and 200 charity-tended to, with the majority going to local shelters and food banks. The cars, pickups and trucks are donated by charity non-profits and local dealers who find them on the market and bring the vehicles to the â€śMaranatha Carâ€ť center, where they are inspected and repaired before being given to donors. The service is not cheap, with the average cost of a â€śdual-fuel vehicleâ€ť at $16,000, said Michael Gerdes, director of the Colorado Community Credit Union Foundation. â€śBut the â€śMaranatha Carâ€ť program really has a lot of heart,â€ť he said. â€śThey really donâ€™t care about the money. They care about actually helping people out.â€ť Since Zamudioâ€™ 3e33713323
