Soft Comfort 6.0..LONDON -- Granite walls, brass fixtures and hidden windows set off a handsome room in the world-renowned Peninsula hotel. A king room at the hotel in Hong Kong is pictured, on July 24, 2016. Granite walls, brass fixtures and hidden windows set off a handsome room in the world-renowned Peninsula hotel. COURTESY OF THE BOHRINGSFORD HONOR ROOM One of a kind. That's what one might say about the Bohringford Honor Room at the Peninsula Hong Kong. The exclusive, long-established room in the hotel's Hong Kong Wing has no less than 14 windows, each with its own personality, and a futuristic designed bed, made of stainless steel and inlaid with black onyx. The painting above the bed, a work by Mark Tan, a Malaysian artist, illustrates hotel owner Chao Tak's distinguished lineage. His great-grandfather was Hong Kong's first inspector general of police, and his grandfather was a member of the Legislative Council. His father was a chemistry professor who became chairman of the Chemical Bank, and his mother ran a Chinese school. Chao Tak's artistic taste has extended to the Bohringford, as he has designed the guest room himself, with help from the Peninsula's renowned Hong Kong-based interior decorator Elizabeth Holmes, to whom he's engaged to be married. "He's very good at color," she says. "He doesn't have traditional Chinese design taste at all." The Bohringford room's decor falls somewhere between a hotel suite and a luxury home. It's furnished with elegant, black-onyx inlays set in all the furniture and fabrics, including the bed, bathrobes and towels. "There's a lot of artwork that really makes it very homey and personal," says Holmes. The walls are covered with paintings, some of which are by well-known painters including Mark Tan and Richard Patterson. A glass door leads to the bathroom, which has
