Another new best friend is Miami Marlins owner Jeffrey Loria, whose pursuit of A-Rod became the latest issue for baseball's power brokers, who on Saturday again questioned the wisdom of expanding the playoffs to 14 teams after the season's first month. A-Rod's floundering season and threats of a trade request and lawsuit have spawned a quiet, catty Internet running commentary in which Alex Rodriguez is "the most reviled player in baseball," says Will Shields, of the conservative Heritage Foundation. A lawyer in Dallas, Chuck Solomon, has told that website his client is asking his

My Production environment is running Apache and Tomcat 6. The site uses an ORM (Hibernate) and a control over RESTful services. Additionally, there are several javascripts on the site, some of which are from commercial sources. I recently transferred the site to the production environment. I am seeing very specific errors from the server: 06-Mar-2013 09:41:44 AM org.apache.tomcat.util.threads.ThreadPoolTaskRunner open SEVERE: Exception sending context initialized event to listener instance of class org.apache.catalina.connector.Request.startInternal java.lang.IllegalArgumentException: Request is too large.
