Q: When installing iOS 8.4 OTA, why are there 2 iOS sign entries in Settings -> General My iphone is running OS 8.4.1, I have already installed the iOS 8.4 OTA, but when I log into the phone, I can see two iOS entries in Settings -> General - the non-mobile baseband version and the mobile baseband version. I just want to know when I did the OTA, was there a reason for this? I'm asking because I have a lot of doubts now. Is it safe to remove the non-mobile baseband version of iOS? (I could just leave it there) Can I safely remove the baseband version of iOS? Any help appreciated. (For technical reasons, no, you can't remove it) You can remove the baseband version of iOS, but it will stop functioning. (Yes, you can remove it, but you can't plug an iPhone into iTunes without iOS 8 installed) News Coronavirus update: The Government has now extended the UK lockdown until at least 6 May, but we should see a more widespread return to work this week (27 March) - which could be a very hectic week for our Digital Marketing agencies!
