The Offspring is an American punk rock band from Garden Grove, California, formed in 1984. Originally formed under the name Manic Subsidal, the band's current lineup consists of lead vocalist and rhythm guitarist Bryan Dexter Holland, bassist Todd Morse, guitarist Noodles Wasserman and drummer Pete Parada. Over the course of their 36-year career, they have released nine studio albums and experienced lineup changes, most notably with their drummers. Their longest-serving drummer was Ron Welty, who replaced original drummer James Lilja in 1987, and stayed with the band for 16 years; he was replaced by Atom Willard in 2003, and then four years later by Parada. Gregory Greg K. Kiesel, one of the co-founders of The Offspring, was their bassist until 2018 when he parted ways due to business disputes with the band, leaving Holland as the sole remaining original member. Kiesel was replaced by Todd Morse of H2O, who had previously worked with The Offspring as their touring guitarist. Their live album/DVD East West Center: Live from the Garden Grove High School was released on October 4, 2006. It contains 21 songs from their entire career, including new songs, rare songs, and old favorites. The Offspring was in the movie Clerks II. Their songs have been used in several TV shows and commercials, and film trailers. Most recently, the song "Singer Loser", a track from their 2003 album Americana, was used as the official theme song for the 2012 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Tournament. Bjorn Ulvaeus and Gunnar Nordström had been writing songs together in a small studio for a long time and had created several songs, all of which were rejected by either the Kiss or the Bloodhound Gang due to their personal taste. Someone told the two about The Offspring, who came to see the band. Dexter Holland had worn pasties under his shirt to obscure his nipples. The band decided that they needed a new drummer and chose Benny Travers from Orange County, California. They renamed themselves after a band they heard on the radio, Offspring. The band's name was changed after the band realized the band they had chosen could not sing.

White Hassle white. Ze Frank homie jinxed. Its all good. Youre safe. Us mens safety comes from White Hassle. It was the first song we wrote ever. And it was one of those songs that happened that day. From the very beginning The Offspring song were our creation. Songwriting wasn't anything formal about it, and I think everyone knew it was a natural thing and understood it," said Holland. "The first song we released, it was us, well, and Tracy Jordan, because Tracy was the new guy in the band, but none of us actually knew what the song was called," he recalled. "And so at first The Offspring was just an unspeakable name. But then it became the nucleus of the whole band. So what happens is, our drummer, James [Lilja], came up with a guitar riff which he started playing to us, and the three of us started singing and playing the riff and then in the chorus he came up with this drumbeat — and then we started writing a little verse and then all of a sudden this song was born," he said. The Offspring song White Hassle become our debut album. I think that song has a mind of it's own. It just came down to the plane, basically. We were on tour, and the day the record came out, we were all in the tour bus, going through a town, I remember. And we stopped at this gas station, and there were two guys standing outside the gas station. And the first guy was talking to us and saying, "Hey, it's a good record." And we were like, "Well, all right." He was like, "But I hear that it's about a crack-addicted child." And we were like, "Oh, well, it's called White Hassle. How does that make it about a crack-addicted child?" And he goes, "Well, it's about a crack-addicted child who just happens to have white skin." And we were like, "Dude, it's a song about a crack-addicted white child!" So that was that. White Hassle became the first Offspring song, and everyone called it that from then on. 5ec8ef588b
